

2019 Rural Palliative Care Education Series

Sponsored by the Washington Rural Palliative Care Initiative and open to all rural communities in Washington

Spiritual Support for People Living with Serious Illness

Please register in advance:

<https://nwth.zoom.us/join/register/28c7a316d8f38f0034538d7d4481ef37>

After registering, you will receive a confirmation email containing information about joining the meeting.

Tuesday, April 23

12:00 to 1:00 pm

Panelists will discuss how to express compassion while exploring issues of meaning and belief in the midst of serious illness.

Moderated by Pat Justis, Executive Director at the State Office of Rural Health
Washington State Department of Health

Panelists

Reverend Oori Silberstein is a Buddhist Minister and trained chaplain providing spiritual care to patients, families and care providers through palliative care teams, trauma centers, and in hospice settings. He has extensive training in trauma resiliency and in teaching mindfulness and mindful self-compassion. His emphasis is on helping people access their inner resources for ease and comfort in the midst of difficulty.

Reverend Tessie Mandeville, MDiv, BCC is a board-certified chaplain who serves on the Palliative Care Team at PeaceHealth St. Joseph Medical Center in Bellingham. Tessie is passionate about serving people with life-limiting illnesses and helping them have the necessary, sometimes difficult, occasionally even funny, conversations about end-of-life.

To learn more about the Washington Rural Palliative Care Initiative and palliative care for rural communities please visit :

<https://waportal.org/partners/home/washington-rural-palliative-care-initiative>

